CURRENT COMMENT.

What the Kentucky Editors are Saying.

"In Indian nomenclature Dr. Clady and Mr. Clay might be denominated 'Candidate-Afraid-of-Sub-Treasury-Bill,' and 'Politician-a-Straddle-of-the-Fence'."—Owensboro Messenger.

Negotiations are in progress looking to a combination of all the barbed wire manufacturers in the country. Truly this would be a monopoly hard for the people to sit down upon.—Cincinnati Times.

C. P. Huntington has paid $11,500 for a cattle picture. Mr. Huntington's man-dam friend, Leland Stanford, goes in for the real article. He pays a great deal more for cattle and gets an ornamental relationship thrown in.—Owensboro Inquirer.

A notorious dead-beat, who has frequently ordered the Record, but never had paid for it, met an attaché of the Record office a few days ago and said: "Here, you can stop my Record. I subscribed for the paper three weeks ago and have never got a copy, yet, so you can just stop it."—Nelson Record.

When a party is compelled to resort to force in order to retain power against the declared will of the people, it would seem that there is no longer a necessity for the existence of such a party. The time has come when the republican party can very well be dispensed with. The least interests of the country require that it should be sent into retirement.—Georgetown Times.

If that august assemblage—the Kentucky constitutional convention—will permit us, we will suggest that while faith without works is dead, a little mixture of faith in their kind with their creative work will aid them very materially. The average legislature is an evil, but a necessary evil, and in the very nature of the case, something must be left to that body.—Louisville Times.

Under the secret ballot republicanism in Kentucky would dwindle in power and prestige as it dwindled in Indiana, Massachusetts and in Rhode Island. In Indiana because Bradleyism and Quayism were impotent. In Massachusetts and in Rhode Island because the power of coercion by the mill owners over their operatives was taken away. Where the secret ballot is there is freedom of election and where there is freedom of election the democratic party has nothing to fear.—Covington Commonwealth.

It is hardly necessary to give credit for this. Nobody but Mr. Watterson would ever be thought of in connection with it.

"When thieves fall out," says the adage, and echo answers, "Look at Quay, look at Hoar, look at Ingalls, and look over into the House at Tom, Tom, the piper's son, who didn't even get away with his pig." The venerable statesman from Vermont may risk and risk that red nose of his. It will do no good. Whom the Gods mean to destroy, whiskey will not save.

Congressman Mills is hot-headed and quick-tempered, but no sensible and non-partisan man will censure him for his outburst in the House yesterday. Speaker Reed has bullied and dominated over his political enemies in that body so long that the wonder is, not that one of them should simply have denounced him on the floor, but that some one of them had not actually used personal violence. Such reticence, from a parliamentary standpoint, is to be deprecated, of course, but one doesn't stop to pick his words or employ the polite manners of a Chesterfield when dealing with a bully.—Louisville Post.

The time has come round again for calling a spade a spade. The grand old party is between hell and the iron-works. There is no other simile that fits its case. The narrow slip of territory supposed to lie between the devil and the deep sea is an oasis in the desert in comparison with the rocky promontory that juts out into the waves of flame which surge up from the McKinley rolling-mill on one side and seeth and hiss amid the infernal depths of the Force Bill on the other side. The gentle showers of reciprocity will not descend to slake the burning thirst of the faithful. A very deluge of free silver will not suffice to pay them out. For there stands the little gentleman, who staggers beneath the load of his grandfather's hat, a veritable Lilliputian Pluto, stirring up the fires of death with a veto, which is just long enough to be terrible to his inquis, and not long enough to reach anybody else. It is the republican dies irae. The day of wrath has come; the day of doom is just ahead. The old thing is going to pieces. Whilst it lived, it lived in clover. Let us hope its death will be painless, as we sing:

"Mary had a little lamb,
But where is Mary now?"

While drilling in his room at Miss Lulu Reed's, at Harrodsburg, Charley Alexander's gun went off, sending a ball through his foot and the floor, ranging down through the ceiling of the room and entering the foot of James Lillard. Within the past month three people have been seriously wounded and two killed from the careless handling of weapons.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—E. W. Lillard & Co. have opened a news stand and will keep on hand all the latest publications, &c. This is something Lancaster needs.

—The impromptu hop, given after the musical Monday night, was very enjoyable in every respect. Prof. Clay Black's orchestra furnished the music.

—The branches that were broken from the trees in the park by the recent heavy sheet have been removed. Some of the beautiful water nymphs are nearly ruined.

—Miss Maggie Miller has returned from a pleasant visit to Miss Mamie Cecil, at Lebanon. Miss Cecil accompanied her home and will remain a few days. Cal. J. T. Knox, the insurance man, was here a few days this week. Mrs. S. T. Leavell, who has been quite sick, is very much improved. W. S. Ferguson is back from a visit to Covington. Mr. Tom Walker, of the firm of Walker & Doty, is able to be out again, after several days' illness. Mrs. Robert L. Bettis is visiting the family of George W. Bettis. Mrs. A. J. Rice is spending a few days with the family of H. A. B. Markberry.

—The musical entertainment by the pupils of Garrard College, under the direction of Prof. Raphael Koester, at the court-house, on Monday evening, was attended by a large and fashionable audience and highly appreciated by all present. Prof. Koester has shown himself to be the right man in the right place. Eminent, qualified, thoroughly impressed with the importance of his work and entering in his endeavors to promote the science to which he has devoted his life, the proficiency of his pupils bears substantial testimony to his success as a teacher. The ISTHMIAN JOURNAL's critic, who was present, notes the piano duo by Misses Georgia Miller and Mattie Walker as splendid; the piano solo by Miss Bessie Webb as well executed; the vocal solo by Miss Ada Farrar as very sweet; the violin solo by Miss Clyde Hoffman as good; the piano solo by Miss Jennie Burnside as excellent; the vocal chorus for female voices as well rendered; the violin solo by Miss Nellie Johnson as very good; the recitation by Miss Hattie L. Marrs as splendid; the piano solo by Miss May Hughes as lovely; the violin solo by Miss Mary Gill as remarkable for one of her age; the vocal solo by Miss Prudie Gordon as very good indeed; the piano solo by Miss Mary Rice as splendid; and the violin duo between Messrs. Homer, Batson and Prof. Koester and the vocal chorus excellent.

—One of the most useful agents in bringing about a settlement of the Indian trouble has been Chief "American Horse," who visited Lancaster a few years since in company with Dr. Waite. He is a man of ability and is worthy of the esteem of his race and the country generally.

It has been suggested that inasmuch as the Indian understands thoroughly the mechanism of a Winchester rifle, he could be readily taught the use of the plow and should be required to turn his attention to agricultural pursuits. Why not allow him to hold office and enter the political arena? He could doubtless hold his own in a stormy convention and obtain recognition from the speaker when he chose to address his fellow members in Congress. On the raging stump he could doubtless hold his own with many of the brass-tongued politicians of the day, and if necessary defend his party with the sharp edge of a scalping knife. By all means let the red brother enter the field of politics at the earliest practicable moment.

The censure that has been indulged in by the people and the press as to the work of the constitutional convention has been, by no means, intended for the members indiscriminately. There are men in that body who would adorn the national halls of legislation, the Supreme Court or any other position to which they might be called, and these are among those whose wise counsel has been practically ignored by the masses of their fellow laborers. There are those whose silence has been construed into indifference and inefficiency, while in reality they are entitled to the highest credit for their prudence and discretion in not consuming valuable time in frivolous discussion upon the various topics presented by members who were anxious to make a display of their imaginary talents. The noisy member who thrusts his opinions upon the body as though he were a Solomon, is not the one whose counsel should be heeded. A pigmy can be battered until he imagines himself a giant, but it is wise to remember the Chinese proverb: "Behold the drum; notwithstanding all its noise, it is empty within."

In the constitutional convention on the 17th, Mr. Swango insisted on striking out the provision authorizing the levy of a poll tax and Judge Whittaker claimed that a poll tax was elevating to the citizens with or without taxable property, and made the poor man as well as the rich man feel himself part of the government. The logic of the position of Judge Whittaker is that it requires taxation to impress a citizen with the fact of his citizenship and that he would feel himself elevated just in proportion to the amount of his taxes. If there are no other methods by which a citizen can be made to feel that he is a part of the government than those of taxation, it would be well for the constitutional tinkers to provide for the heaviest taxation possible. Most men, however, would rather be "elevated" in some other mode than by the dun of a sheriff for their taxes. The judge assumed to know how taxation affects rich and poor, that both are alike proud of the fact that they are subject to taxation and feel their importance on that account. If he is both rich and poor, he can speak experimentally as to the effect of taxation upon both classes, but the observation of mankind generally upon this subject is that rich men are apt to complain of excessive taxation and that poor men are not disposed to be rebellious because the assessments imposed upon them have been too small.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

—The capital removal provision has been adopted and bids for its location are now in order.

—Mr. Knott says that the uniform rule of taxation adopted if carried into effect will drive the banks into liquidation; that they cannot live under it.

—The country members got in their work on the cities by adopting the amendment taxing all municipal property other than that used for governmental purposes.

—Mr. Miller's effort to secure an exemption from taxation of camp meeting grounds to the extent of 20 acres, was as badly misdirected as it was rejected. Since the degeneration of camp-meetings it would be better to put a constitutional inhibition on them altogether.

—Mr. Forgy, of Butler, after stating that the body had been in session over 100 days and that business had been greatly retarded by the absence of a quorum, offered a resolution that the newspapers and the voters of this Commonwealth be requested to notify any delegate absenting himself from the convention that his presence is required at the State-house in order to make a quorum, and if he be not present in 48 hours, his name and all other absentees be stricken from the pay roll. The resolution was not adopted, but should be.

—Mr. Miller offered a substitute for the section of the tax bill that no municipality shall appropriate money or loan its credit in aid of any individual corporation, to authorize municipalities to join with corporations for the purpose of making necessary public improvements for the comfort, convenience or health of a community, but it was rejected. The original section was then adopted and it forbids a municipality to aid any corporation or individual in any enterprise except for the construction and maintenance of bridges, turnpikes and gravel roads.

—Ever since the Christmas vacation the body has been tinkering on the taxation report, which is at last about settled. The poll tax feature was reduced to $1.50 as the limit. The exempted list is considerably cut down, but it is still pretty large. It includes public property used for public purposes; actual places of religious worship, with the grounds attached thereto, and used and appurtenant to the house of worship, not exceeding ½ acre in cities or towns and two acres in the country; places of burial not held for private or corporate profit, and institutions of purely public charity, and institutions of education not used or employed for gain by any person or corporation, and whose income is devoted solely to the cause of education, public libraries, their endowments and the income of such property as it is used exclusively for their maintenance; all parsonages or residences owned by any religious society and occupied as a home for any minister of religion, or priest, and crops grown in the year in which the assessment is made in the hands of the producer. Provided that household goods and other personal property of persons with a family, not more in value than $250 shall be exempted from taxation. Provided, further, that the General Assembly may exempt any incorporated city or town to exempt manufacturing establishments from municipal taxation for a period not exceeding five years as an inducement for their location.

—Augustus Sharpe has disposed of his mammoth dry goods store in Louisville to a syndicate, which takes it at $400,000. Mr. Sharpe retains half of the stock and will continue to manage the business. Gen. John B. Castleman is among the directors of the new company.

—The New York Court of appeals has rendered a decision which is of interest to shoppers. A lady who entered a store laid her cloak on a counter to try on a new wrap. The cloak was stolen. The court holds that the proprietor of the store is liable for the value of the stolen garment.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—A house belonging to Mary Rice, colored, was burned one night last week. The house had not been finished long. Nothing of value was saved.

—The medal contest held at the Christian church Wednesday night was quite a success. The medal was awarded to Miss Mamie DeBorde. All did remarkably well.

—James Yantis bought of Willis Adams, of Rockcastle, 39 head of sheep, all ewes, for $210. James T. Holden shipped a car load of corn to Jellico and sold it for $2.75.

—The partnership of Pettus & Zeller is dissolved and those indebted to them, either for drugs or medical services, are requested to call at Pettus & Beazley's and settle, if they wish to save costs. In the lumps given to the town by the Crab Orchard Dramatic Society have been received and put up. They add much to the appearance of the town and we hope our citizens may no longer walk in darkness.

—Mrs. Polly Cook, aged 81, died at her daughter's home, Mrs. Thompson McQuary, near Crab Orchard, Monday morning. She had been paralyzed for several days before her death. She was born and raised in Garrard county.

—Bros. Jones, Broadhurst and Livingston are conducting a meeting at the Christian church here. They are earnest workers and we hope they will reap a bountiful harvest. Bro. Broadhurst received a telegram stating that his little boy was sick and he had to leave.

—A burglary was committed last Friday night by John Lockett, colored, on the store of David Payne, but there was nothing missed except some old coins and pennies which were left in the money drawer, one of which was marked. Lockett while playing coontz with another negro lost the marked coin and the winner went to Payne's store and bought something, offering the coin in payment, thus giving a clue to the thief. Both negroes were arrested and upon trial the winner was dismissed and Lockett was held over. Lockett is a new comer here and has proven himself of bad character.

—Miss Mamie Henry, of Lancaster, is the guest of Miss Maud Pettus. Henry King, who has been attending school at Danville, is at home, very sick. Mrs. Mary J. Bailey, of Harrodsburg, is here on a visit to her son, Mr. J. R. Bailey. Miss Maggie Buchanan has returned from quite a lengthy visit to her sister, Mrs. John A. Haldeman, of Louisville. One young man is smiling. Mrs. Annie Wearen, Stanford, and Miss Nannie Teaton, of Paint Lick, were the guests of Mrs. J. H. Stephens, this week. Mr. W. F. Abraham and his little son, Robert, left this week for Knoxville, to which place his family moved some time ago, where they have been keeping a boarding-house. Miss Isabel Owsley is visiting Mrs. A. W. Montgomery. Mrs. John Edmiston, Misses Millie Payne and Bessie Carson and Mr. Henry Pettus are quite sick. Mr. James F. Cummins and wife have gone to housekeeping in the house vacated by Mr. J. C. King on Sonneret street. We wish the new housekeepers much happiness. Miss Hattie Henry and Messrs. Bettis, Henry and Harris, of Lancaster, were over Sunday. Miss Mary Parrish, who has been visiting in Cincinnati, has returned. Messrs. Vannie Tanner and Lige Coffey, of McKinney, were the guests of Mr. Alex Stephenson this week.

DANVILLE.—C. R. Anderson bought 10 shares of Farmers National Bank stock at auction at $187.05. The Danville Ice Manufacturing Company, with an authorized capital of $10,000, has been incorporated by M. J. Farris, J. W. Harlan, J. A. Cheek, J. L. Bruce, Thomas McRoberts, J. H. Otter, R. P. McGoodwin, J. A. Quisenberry and William Cheek. The company also secures the privilege of conducting a cold storage department for the preservation of meats, fruits, &c., and has the right to run an electric plant for lighting purposes or to generate motive power. Miss Jennie, daughter of Andrew Wayne, died at Perryville. Mrs. W. C. Lucas died at Oceola, Mo., Friday, at the residence of her son-in-law, James H. Linney, aged 67.—Advocate.

—The American National Bank of Kansas City has been taken charge of by a receiver. The liabilities are estimated at $2,250,000, while the assets are nominally $1,500,000. The failure was caused by the stringency in the money market, difficulties in negotiating loans, withdrawal of heavy deposits, a run of customers Friday and Saturday, and the failure of the Clearing-house to make good its proffered support. The other banks were not affected, except that a run was made on the Savings bank, which did business in the same building, and was supposed to be connected with the American. It however pulled through all right.

—The citizens of Greenville, O., are much wrought up over the forcible removal from the Catholic cemetery by order of Bishop Elder, of the body of Mrs. Jennie Henry, because the woman was not a Catholic.

W. P. WALTON.

THERE was a h. o. t. in the House Tuesday and a similar caloric condition existed for a short time Wednesday. Speaker Reed made a ruling even more unfair than usual, when Mr. Mills, unable to restrain his indignation, went up to the chair and denounced Reed for perpetrating a fraud on the House. Several republicans took up the quarrel and Mills being backed by his party, a personal collision seemed imminent. In the midst of it all the Maine bulldozer sat as calm as a clam, but finally ordered the sergeant-at-arms to produce the mace and this acted like oil on the troubled waters. Reed stuck to his ruling and only smiled when Mills charged that he was no gentleman. He has the most remarkable control over himself and therein lies his power over his party and the House. His conduct is exceedingly exasperating, but Mr. Mills' outburst of passion, admitting he had strong provocation, shows that he is not even tempered enough to be speaker, to which position he aspires. Our own McCreary is the best all around equipped man for the place that has been mentioned. He never loses his head.

Gov. Hill, was unanimously chosen by the New York legislative caucus for U. S. Senator and the republicans conferred a like honor on Mr. Everts. It is understood that Gov. Hill will remain in the executive office till next December, if there is no extra session of Congress. The final ballot in the legislature was taken at noon Wednesday, when Gov. Hill received 81 and Everts 79, the full vote of each party, the democratic majority being but two. An effort was made to prevent one of the democrats from voting by having him arrested for forgery and embezzlement, but a mere charge is not sufficient to take a man's rights from him, as he is supposed to be innocent until the reverse is proven. Some profess to think that Gov. Hill's election will give him a tremendous boom for the presidency, but it is more than probable that he has touched the top of his ladder of fame.

Lt. Gov. JAMES W. BRYAN, who has been favorably mentioned as a possible candidate for governor, says he will not offer for the position. Says he: "I need not say what an honor I would esteem it for the people of my native State to deem me worthy of being chosen governor. But a man's first duty is to his family, and inasmuch as I am dependent upon my profession for my livelihood, that sacred duty forbids my aspiring to, or taking any office that would compel me to give up the practice of my profession." This decision will be received with regret by the talented young man's friends all over the State. Jim Bryan is big-hearted and big brained and we should have liked monstrous well to have put in one for him.

Col. W. M. HULL, who accompanied Mr. Waterson on his lecture tour in Iowa, says in an interview with the Louisville Times that saloons run right along in most of the towns of the State, just as if prohibition had never been heard of. This evidence may be considered conclusive, since it comes right natural like for the colonel to investigate such matters, not always for publication, but as an evidence of the good faith he has in spiritual matters of that kind. The prohibition law seems to amount simply to local option. Where the local public sentiment is in favor of it, there are no open drinking places; where it is not, the festive barkeeper flourishes as usual.

REVENUE AGENT WILMORE is said to have resigned his position. If this is true, Mr. Wilmore can get a lucrative position as a freak in a museum, for a republican who would give up an office without being kicked out would be a curiosity worth any man's money. Among the applicants for his place are Col. John K. Faulkner and Woolford G. Unnapp, the latter backed by Surveyor Collier, who is with him in Washington urging his appointment.

ZEN WARD has withdrawn his suit for $100,000 damages against the Louisville Post, thereby virtually admitting the charges made by that paper that he had attempted to swindle the city by false bills of lading for granite. The Post is not afraid to call a spade a spade or any fine gentleman (?) a thief, if the grounds warrant it. Judge Finley is a bad man from Bitter Creek and it won't do to monkey with him.

THE Texas legislature has just canvassed the vote for governor at the last election: Hogg, dem., 262,432; Flanagan, rep., 77,712; Heath, pro., 2,463, a democratic majority over the republicans of 184,720. This will do tolerably well, but the democrats say this isn't a patching of what they will give Grover Cleveland in 1892.

THE promised stampede to Taggart, the farmers' candidate for U. S. Senator in Pennsylvania, did not materialize worth a cent. He only got 11, while Don Cameron secured 144 and Chauncey F. Black 94. Don still rules the roost in the Keystone State.

Mr. ALBAUGH, of Rhode Island, has at last gotten the "cloture" before the Senate and that has for the time being taken the place of the Force bill. The "cloture" is simply a gag law giving the republicans the right to cut off debate when they choose. If it is forced through, and it is said that Mr. Morton is ready to do his part to that end, the Force bill will be passed as a matter of course. The leaders of the republican party seem bent on doing everything to accomplish their complete destruction.

TUESDAY was a tough day in legislative bodies. An exchange says: "Speaker Reed called up the Sergeant-at-Arms to help him yesterday. In the New Hampshire legislature the republican managers called in the police. In Nebraska they had the militia. In Colorado and Wisconsin they tried revolvers. In Montana they used fists. In Connecticut they are still threatening the use of Gatling guns. Let us have a Force bill for the North."

THE Illinois legislature seems to be dead-locked on the senatorial question, but it is hoped and believed that the three Alliance men, who are voting for Streeter, will realize the error of their way and go over to Gen. Palmer, who has 101 votes to Oglesby's 100.

SENATOR STANFORD has offered a bill to expend a million of dollars in providing an extension for the White House. This would be a waste of money. The House is much too large now for the little man who occupies it.

THE Glasgow Times speaks of the howling Green Times. We were aware that John's legs are very crooked, but he is surprised at this statement. He must be in a very bad fix.

THE Lexington papers never get here till the day after publication. A little investigation as to the wherefore is in order.

The honor was never before bestowed on any but graduating members and Sam is the proudest boy in the State. He is a great man in election and never fails to take a big part for the democratic nominees in every race.

An inch or so of snow covered the earth yesterday morning, but following a rain it fast dissolved in mud and slush, making locomotion very disagreeable.

News has been received by their friends here that another boy has blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Boyd, of Knoxville. It will be remembered that Mrs. Boyd was the handsome Miss Annie Logan.

The Lincoln County Building and Saving Association's books are still open for subscriptions to a new series of stock to date, Jan. 1, 1891. Call at its office in the Farmers Bank & Trust Co. J. H. Baughman, Secretary.

The home of Mrs. Pat Muldoon, who lives on the Hale's Well road, burned Tuesday evening, together with most of the contents. The fire caught from the chimney and burned before assistance arrived. The old lady managed to save one bed and her sewing machine.

The Old Fellows are making considerable improvements in their lodge room, which is now used by half a dozen societies and congregations. A reception room has been fitted up and carpeted and all the rooms have had most improved electric lamps placed in them.

Bought a HOME.—Mr. A. J. Earp, the photographer, has bought of Mr. W. H. Boney 48 feet front of his lot on lower Main street and contracted with him for a one-story cottage. The price paid for the whole is $1,125. Mr. Boney will begin at once the building of the cottage and says it will further add to the good appearance of that end of town.

THE WEALTH.—Supervisor J. M. Cook tells us that the taxable property in Lincoln county is assessed at $5,000,000 divided as follows: Stanford precinct $2,385,000, Hustonville $1,000,000, Tarnersville $505,000, Walnut Flat $289,000, Crab Orchard $351,000, Highland $88,000 and Waynesburg $182,000. There are 3,300 voters in the county.

DON'T WASTE HIM.—Marshall O. J. Newland received a telegram from Gen. Taylor, chief of police of Louisville yesterday, stating that he had Silas Embury in town and that if he was wanted here, he could be had by coming for him. The marshal telegraphed the chief that he was not wanted, but on the contrary the citizens here would like to see him kept in Louisville or sent further away if possible. It will be remembered that the little rascal found his way into M. H. Elmore's cash drawer the day he took his departure.

GETTING READY FOR THE SUMMER.—D. G. Slaughter has rented out his Mt. Tabor property and sold his stock of goods and rented his Paint Lick store and dwelling to Messrs. Short & Co., of Lexington, who will take possession on Feb. 21. Mr. S. will return to Green Briar Springs early in February and begin the erection of several new buildings for the season of 1891. He says he is determined to make an excellent carriage road from Crab Orchard to his springs this summer and leave nothing undone to make his resort the most attractive in Kentucky.

It is a little soon to begin talking about the horse season, but already some stallions are being advertised in the Lexington and Paris papers. These are therefore to remind you that when you are ready to elaborate on the blood and pedigree of those you wish to stand, that the INTERIOR JOURNAL is ready to accommodate you in any shape, with new cuts and other adornments. We do not claim to do work cheaper than anybody else, but we do assert, without fear of successful contradiction, that we do it as low as similar work can be done by any first-class house.

Those parents who think they can outwit the average youth know not how frequently they are fooled. For instance, a short while ago, a couple of young gentlemen and ladies intended taking a trip to a neighboring town and when the young ladies asked their manas in regard to going they were informed that they could, provided the youths secured a surrey, but under no circumstances could they go in separate buggies. The boys were informed of this and with inventive minds soon had things arranged. A couple of huggies were sent ahead and in a surrey they drove to the respective homes, secured the fair damsels and in less time than it has taken to tell this story, they were paired off and the surrey sent home to be used by older, but probably not wiser heads. By the way, it looks a little foolish on the part of the parents to object to such a thing anyway. If they have not enough confidence in the escort of their daughter to let her go alone with him, would it not be more sensible and better in every way to put a quietus on the whole business by keeping her at home.

A BIRTHDAY DINNER.—Mr. Tinsley Spoonbore gave an elegant birthday dinner Wednesday. About 25 of his friends were present and partook of his hospitality.

SALE OF LOT.—Dr. J. K. Varnersdale has bought Rev. John Bell Gibson's lot on Somerset pike for $750. It contains five acres. The doctor is figuring with an architect for a plan for a building on it.

Ten stockholders here in the Metropolitan National at Kansas City will be interested in hearing that Mr. J. S. Hocker has received a telegram from President B. W. Hocker stating that his bank was not in the least affected by the failure of the American National there.

"The Penalty of Crime," which is described as a thoroughly sensational drama, will be presented at Walton's Opera House Feb. 13, by the distinguished comedian, George Bennett, supported by the handsome and talented sourette, Miss Ella Hunter, and a good company.

The county committee met yesterday and accepted the resignation of Capt. Thomas Richards, after which a call was made for the democracy of Stanford precinct to meet here at 2 o'clock, January 21, to elect a committeeman. The committee is then requested to meet here on county court day and select a chairman.

A CERTAIN man in town, who does not think it necessary for him to patronize the institutions of the home where he gets his own living, sent off to Louisville for a job of printing the other day, thinking he would save a nickel or so. He got a worse job than we would dare send out and the whole cost him 15 cents more than our regular rates. Moral: Patronize home institutions, or at least get their prices before you send your money off.

The Lincoln County Building and Loan Association is going right along helping those who wish to secure homes and making its stockholders over 8 per cent. A dividend of $1.85 a share was declared for the last six months, although $45.54 had been paid to Jan. 1. A new series of stock has just been opened and Secretary J. H. Baughman invites investors to call and see for themselves that they cannot do better with their money.

BURNED TO DEATH.—Mrs. Lucy Cook, wife of Rev. Strother Cook, was so badly burned that she lived but a few hours. Her husband had gone to church, leaving her at home with a young negro boy. She went to sleep while reading a paper near an open fire, and the paper fell from her lap to the grate, igniting her clothing. The negro threw a bucket of water over her, but it did little good. She was 70 years of age and had spent her life in the service of the Lord. She raised a family of 12 children, all of whom survive but one, who was killed in the service of the Last Cause. One of her sons, Elder Strother Cook, is a missionary to Africa and it will be months before he will hear of his terrible loss in his mother's tragic death. Mrs. Cook was a member of the Baptist church for over half a century and was a lovely christian, a devoted wife and a tender mother. An old gentleman who was present says that the funeral sermon, which was preached by Rev. W. A. Boren, at Shawnee Run Church, was the most touching he ever listened to and that the procession is said to have been the largest ever seen in Mercer county. The pall-bearers were six of her grand-children, young men ranging in age from 17 to 21 years.

THE MURDER OF GEORGE EMBREE.—The Guthrie, Oklahoma, Capital gives the following account: "Tra N. Terrill rushed out of the Land Office and turned abruptly around to George W. Embree, and said in a loud tone: 'You are a ————!'" Embree, who was standing with his back to the west and leaning against the fence, near the little gate opening into the government acre, promptly applied the same to Terrill, which he himself had been called. "Take that back or I'll kill you," fell then from Terrill's lips in thunder tones and out came his polished revolver, the hammer clicked and an instantaneous report said too plainly that murder was to be committed. The second, third, fourth and fifth reports rang out in quick succession and George Embree's soul had taken its flight; his light of life had been put out, and his warm, red blood, gushing out from many cruel wounds, found its way in a little stream toward the street. Not content with his work, the demon, Terrill, crouched by the side of his slain neighbor and snapped the hammer of his revolver twice at the inanimate form, but every cartridge had been exploded and further worldly harm to George Embree was out of the question. The murder, for such it was, had been committed in cold blood and having succeeded in taking the life of a fellow being, Terrill arose and flourishing his revolver over his head started to run. He was pursued and soon captured by the sheriff. An effort was made to take him from the officers and lynch him, but he was gotten away and placed in a military camp for protection. Embree had testified before the land court that Terrill was a "sooner" in his effort to establish a claim. The murdered man was 32 years of age and leaves a wife and little grand daughter. He was well-known here, having visited Stanford several times, the last time being when his uncle, Pate Embree, died.

ATTENTION is called to the Shelton House, Rowland. The new proprietor, Mr. J. H. Greer, is a wide-awake man and determined to keep the hotel up to its high standard.

We thought our Hustonville scribe was so tightly wound up that he would take a long time to run down, but we were mistaken. What's the matter, doctor? Take something and brace up.

James W. E. Varnon has had looks and doors put on the court house and ordered that the jailer keep them locked at night. This should have been done long ago, even at the risk of breaking up a favorite resort of lewd men and women.

DEATH.—News was received yesterday of the death of Jack Adams, Sr., at his home at Mt. Vernon, from a general giving away of the system. He was 75 years old and his long and honorable career is an open book to the people of this section. Five children survive him, Mrs. C. S. Nield, Misses Ida and May Adams, Willis and Jack Adams. We expected a full account of Mr. Adams' life and death from our Mt. Vernon correspondent yesterday, but his letter failed to arrive and it was too late then for us to secure particulars.
